

THE WHITE ALBINO PEACOCK, THE SLOTH AND THE MONKEY

By Dawn Stachurski

Louise the White Albino Peacock wanted to escape the Staten Island Zoo. But the White Albino Peacock said to herself, "I need to help my friends, Grandpa the Monkey and Dunkin the Sloth."

So Louise went back to save her friends and to escape from the Staten Island Zoo. Louise went by the Monkey's cage and yelled. The Monkey named Grandpa woke up and said, "Louise, you came back for me."

Louise the White Albino Peacock said, "Shhh, I will unlock the cage." So Louise bit the cage, and the door of the cage opened.

Grandpa the Monkey said, "Thank you."

Louise the White Albino Peacock said to Grandpa the Monkey, "Don't forget about Dunkin."

Grandpa said to Louise, "You are right. We need to help our friend, Dunkin."

Louise and Grandpa talked about coming up with a plan to help Dunkin the Sloth.

"Ah" said Grandpa, "I just had a brilliant idea."

Louise said, "What is it?"

Grandpa answered, "Louise, you need to yell as loud as you can and I will unlock the gate. I will get Dunkin out of his cage. Try to distract the Zookeeper."

Louise said to Grandpa, "What a great idea! I like that idea!"

Grandpa said, "You need to yell really loudly so you will get the Zookeeper's attention. I will get the keys out of the Zookeeper's pocket. Then, I will unlock the Sloth's cage, and I will push Dunkin out."
